Introduction

- [1] The hearing resulted from a Complaint into the conduct of the Respondent and a Board resolution under regulation 10 of the Complaints Regulations<sup>1</sup> to hold a hearing in relation to building work at [Omitted]. The alleged disciplinary offences the Board resolved to investigate were that the Respondent:
- (a) carried out or supervised building work or building inspection work in a negligent or incompetent manner (s 317(1)(b) of the Act);
  - (b) carried out or supervised building work or building inspection work that does not comply with a building consent (s 317(1)(d) of the Act); and
  - (c) failed, without good reason, in respect of a building consent that relates to restricted building work that he or she is to carry out (other than as an owner-builder) or supervise, or has carried out (other than as an owner-builder) or supervised, (as the case may be), to provide the persons specified in section 88(2) with a record of work, on completion of the restricted building work, in accordance with section 88(1) (s 317(1)(da)(ii) of the Act).

Function of Disciplinary Action

- [2] The common understanding of the purpose of professional discipline is to uphold the integrity of the profession. The focus is not punishment, but the protection of the public, the maintenance of public confidence and the enforcement of high standards of propriety and professional conduct. Those purposes were recently reiterated by the Supreme Court of the United Kingdom in R v Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales<sup>2</sup> and in New Zealand in Dentice v Valuers Registration Board<sup>3</sup>.
- [3] Disciplinary action under the Act is not designed to redress issues or disputes between a complainant and a respondent. In McLanahan and Tan v The New Zealand Registered Architects Board<sup>4</sup> Collins J. noted that:
- “... the disciplinary process does not exist to appease those who are dissatisfied ... . The disciplinary process ... exists to ensure professional standards are maintained in order to protect clients, the profession and the broader community.”
- [4] The Board can only inquire into “the conduct of a licensed building practitioner” with respect to the grounds for discipline set out in section 317 of the Act. It does not have any jurisdiction over contractual matters.

Procedure

- [5] The Respondent did not respond to the Complaint. As such the Board resolved to proceed with the matter on the papers. Prior to the hearing the Respondent did provide submissions. On reviewing the submissions the Board decided that it was still appropriate to proceed with the matter on the papers.

Evidence

- [6] The Board must be satisfied on the balance of probabilities that the disciplinary offences alleged have been committed<sup>5</sup>. Under section 322 of the Act the Board has relaxed rules of evidence which allow it to receive evidence that may not be admissible in a court of law.
- [7] The Complaint set out that the Respondent was engaged to install an asphalt shingle roof on a new build residential dwelling. The build was carried out under a building consent. The Complainant alleged the Respondent failed to install flashings around vent pipes correctly. He noted that the Respondent considered the flashings should have been completed by the plumber but that the plumber advised that he could not complete them and that it had to be done by an approved installer. The Complainant arranged for a manufacturer’s representative to meet the Respondent on site to provide installation instructions. The Respondent then fitted the flashings that were provided. The Complainant alleged they were fitted in a non-compliant manner and that a Building Control Officer had stated they would not pass an inspection. He noted:

“We could see that the flashings were just stuck on the top of the shingles and it also appeared that they had been nailed or screwed down into the plywood substrate. Both of these practices are not according to the specifications written by Viking Roofspec.

- [8] The manufacturer sent an employee to repair the work. The person who carried out the repairs noted that zinc plated flooring screws had been used, as had non-UV resistant sealant which had started to perish.
- [9] The manufacturer’s drawings and specifications were provided, as were photographs of the Respondent’s work.
- [10] The Complainant also complained that the Respondent had failed to provide a record of work or to respond to requests for one.
- [11] The Respondent’s hearing submissions stated:

It was already a while ago, on the house ... we have correctly installed shingles and underlays and all the other relative materials. The work was done.

We followed our instructions and we completed the work correctly.

After our work is finished, the person from this property decided to install this “plumbing vent” THROUGH the roof, ( after the roofing work is done. ) it is fine to do this through the roof, but there was a better idea that if they could have done it through the wall instead of the roof. As you know, we are roofing company, we are qualified roofers with years of shingle roofing experiences.

However, we do not deal with “plumbing issues”, as we are not plumbers and we are shingle roofing applicators.

- [12] The Respondent went on to reiterate the substance of the submission above and to deal with commercial matters including that he would provide documentation if he was allowed to check the work.

Board’s Conclusion and Reasoning

- [13] The Board has decided that the Respondent has:

- (a) carried out or supervised building work or building inspection work in a negligent manner (s 317(1)(b) of the Act);
- (b) carried out or supervised building work or building inspection work that does not comply with a building consent (s 317(1)(d) of the Act); and
- (c) failed, without good reason, in respect of a building consent that relates to restricted building work that he or she is to carry out (other than as an owner-builder) or supervise, or has carried out (other than as an owner-builder) or supervised, (as the case may be), to provide the persons specified in section 88(2) with a record of work, on completion of the restricted building work, in accordance with section 88(1) (s 317(1)(da)(ii) of the Act); and should be disciplined.

[14] The reasons for the Board's decision follow.

Negligence and/or Incompetence

[15] Negligence and incompetence are not the same. In Beattie v Far North Council<sup>6</sup> Judge McElrea noted:

[43] Section 317 of the Act uses the phrase "in a negligent or incompetent manner", so it is clear that those adjectives cannot be treated as synonymous.

[16] Negligence is the departure by a licensed building practitioner, whilst carrying out or supervising building work, from an accepted standard of conduct. It is judged against those of the same class of licence as the person whose conduct is being inquired into. This is described as the Bolam<sup>7</sup> test of negligence which has been adopted by the New Zealand Courts<sup>8</sup>.

[17] Incompetence is a lack of ability, skill or knowledge to carry out or supervise building work to an acceptable standard. Beattie put it as "a demonstrated lack of the reasonably expected ability or skill level". In Ali v Kumar and Others<sup>9</sup> it was stated as "an inability to do the job".

[18] The New Zealand Courts have stated that assessment of negligence and/or incompetence in a disciplinary context is a two-stage test<sup>10</sup>. The first is for the Board to consider whether the practitioner has departed from the acceptable standard of conduct of a professional. The second is to consider whether the departure is significant enough to warrant a disciplinary sanction.

[19] When considering what an acceptable standard is, the Board must have reference to the conduct of other competent and responsible practitioners and the Board's own assessment of what is appropriate conduct, bearing in mind the purpose of the Act<sup>11</sup>. The test is an objective one and in this respect it has been noted that the purpose of discipline is the protection of the public by the maintenance of professional standards and that this could not be met if, in every case, the Board was required to take into account subjective considerations relating to the practitioner<sup>12</sup>.

[20] The Board notes that the purposes of the Act are:

3 Purposes

This Act has the following purposes:

- (a) to provide for the regulation of building work, the establishment of a licensing regime for building practitioners, and the setting of performance standards for buildings to ensure that—
  - (i) people who use buildings can do so safely and without endangering their health; and
  - (ii) buildings have attributes that contribute appropriately to the health, physical independence, and well-being of the people who use them; and
  - (iii) people who use a building can escape from the building if it is on fire; and
  - (iv) buildings are designed, constructed, and able to be used in ways that promote sustainable development:
- (b) to promote the accountability of owners, designers, builders, and building consent authorities who have responsibilities for ensuring that building work complies with the building code.

[21] The Board also notes, as regards acceptable standards, that all building work must comply with the Building Code<sup>13</sup> and be carried out in accordance with a building consent<sup>14</sup>. As such, when considering what is and is not an acceptable standard, the Building Code and any building consent issued must be taken into account.

[22] Turning to seriousness in Collie v Nursing Council of New Zealand<sup>15</sup> the Court's noted, as regards the threshold for disciplinary matters, that:

[21] Negligence or malpractice may or may not be sufficient to constitute professional misconduct and the guide must be standards applicable by competent, ethical and responsible practitioners and there must be behaviour which falls seriously short of that which is to be considered acceptable and not mere inadvertent error, oversight or for that matter carelessness.

[23] The evidence before the Board of non-compliant work was compelling. Manufacturer's instructions had not been complied with. Incorrect fixings and sealant had been used. The photographs showed flashings were prone to failure. Water ingress was a real possibility. The response to the complaint did not deal with or answer the fundamental compliance issues.

[24] Given the above the Board, which includes persons with extensive experience and expertise in the building industry, considered the Respondent has departed from what the Board considers to be an accepted standard of conduct and that the conduct was sufficiently serious enough to warrant a disciplinary outcome.

Contrary to a Building Consent

- [25] Under section 40 of the Act all building work must be carried out in accordance with the building consent issued. This ensures that there is independent verification that the Building Code has been complied with and the building work will meet any required performance criteria. A failure to adhere to a building consent is also an offence under section 40.
- [26] In Tan v Auckland Council<sup>16</sup> the High Court, whilst dealing with a situation where no building consent had been obtained, stated the importance of the consenting process as follows:

[35] The building consent application process ensures that the Council can check that any proposed building work is sufficient to meet the purposes described in s 3 (of the Act). If a person fails to obtain a building consent that deprives the Council of its ability to check any proposed building work.

- [27] The Complaint set out that the work had not been completed in accordance with the consented plans and specifications. The relevant documentation was provided. Again the evidence that the building work was not in accordance with the building consent was compelling and as such the Board finds that the disciplinary offence has been committed.
- [28] The Board does note and accept that there is a commonality between the charges and the conduct under sections 317(1)(b) and 317(1)(d). This will be accounted for when the Board deals with considerations of penalty.

Record of Work

- [29] There is a statutory requirement under section 88(1) of the Building Act 2004 for a licensed building practitioner to provide a record of work to the owner and the territorial authority on completion of restricted building work<sup>17</sup>.
- [30] Failing to provide a record of work is a ground for discipline under section 317(1)(da)(ii) of the Act. In order to find that ground for discipline proven, the Board need only consider whether the Respondent had “good reason” for not providing a record of work on “completion” of the restricted building work.
- [31] The Board discussed issues with regard to records of work in its decision C2-01170<sup>18</sup> and gave guidelines to the profession as to who must provide a record of work, what a record of work is for, when it is to be provided, the level of detail that must be provided, who a record of work must be provided to and what might constitute a good reason for not providing a record of work.
- [32] The starting point with a record of work is that it is a mandatory statutory requirement whenever restricted building work under a building consent is carried out or supervised by a licensed building practitioner (other than as an owner-builder). Each and every licensed building practitioner who carries out restricted building work must provide a record of work.

- [33] The statutory provisions do not stipulate a timeframe for the licenced person to provide a record of work. The provisions in section 88(1) simply states “on completion of the restricted building work ...”.
- [34] In most situations issues with the provision of a record of work do not arise. The work progresses and records of work are provided in a timely fashion.
- [35] This has not occurred. The work has been completed but a record of work has not been provided. The Respondent states it is because he has not been given the opportunity to inspect the work. In this respect should be noted that a record of work is not a statement as to the quality or compliance of the building work. It is simply a statement as to who carried out or supervised what restricted building work. As such an inspection of the final work is not required for it to be provided. On this basis the Respondent’s restricted building work had been completed and a record of work was due.
- [36] A record of work has still not been provided. On this basis the disciplinary offence has been committed.
- [37] Section 317(1)(da)(ii) of the Act provides for a defence of the licenced building practitioner having a “good reason” for failing to provide a record of work. If they can, on the balance of probabilities, prove to the Board that one exists then it is open to the Board to find that a disciplinary offence has not been committed. Each case will be decided by the Board on its own merits but the threshold for a good reason is high. No good reasons have been advanced.

Penalty, Costs and Publication

- [38] Having found that one or more of the grounds in section 317 applies the Board must, under section 318 of the Act<sup>i</sup>, consider the appropriate disciplinary penalty, whether the Respondent should be ordered to pay any costs and whether the decision should be published.
- [39] The matter was dealt with on the papers. Included was information relevant to penalty, costs and publication and the Board has decided to make indicative orders and give the Respondent an opportunity to provide further evidence or submissions relevant to the indicative orders.

Penalty

- [40] The purpose of professional discipline is to uphold the integrity of the profession; the focus is not punishment, but the enforcement of a high standard of propriety and professional conduct. The Board does note, however, that the High Court in

Patel v Complaints Assessment Committee<sup>19</sup> commented on the role of "punishment" in giving penalty orders stating that punitive orders are, at times, necessary to provide a deterrent and to uphold professional standards. The Court noted:

[28] I therefore propose to proceed on the basis that, although the protection of the public is a very important consideration, nevertheless the issues of punishment and deterrence must also be taken into account in selecting the appropriate penalty to be imposed.

- [41] The Board also notes that in Lochhead v Ministry of Business Innovation and Employment<sup>20</sup> the court noted that whilst the statutory principles of sentencing set out in the Sentencing Act 2002 do not apply to the Building Act they have the advantage of simplicity and transparency. The court recommended adopting a starting point for penalty based on the seriousness of the disciplinary offending prior to considering any aggravating and/or mitigating factors.
- [42] The Respondent has been found to have committed three disciplinary offences. The section 317(1)(b) and 317(1)(d) matters will, as noted above, be treated as single instance. The Board also notes that the overall level of offending in respect of those matters was at the lower end of the scale. That said the Board's normal starting point for a failure to provide a record of work matter alone is a fine of $1,500.
- [43] Taking the above matters into consideration the Board's penalty decision is that the Respondent pay a fine of $2,000.

Costs

- [44] Under section 318(4) the Board may require the Respondent "to pay the costs and expenses of, and incidental to, the inquiry by the Board."
- [45] The Respondent should note that the High Court has held that 50% of total reasonable costs should be taken as a starting point in disciplinary proceedings and that the percentage can then be adjusted up or down having regard to the particular circumstances of each case<sup>21</sup>.
- [46] In Collie v Nursing Council of New Zealand<sup>22</sup> where the order for costs in the tribunal was 50% of actual costs and expenses the High Court noted that:

But for an order for costs made against a practitioner, the profession is left to carry the financial burden of the disciplinary proceedings, and as a matter of policy that is not appropriate.
- [47] The Board notes the matter was dealt with on the papers. Ordinarily costs for a hearing of this nature would be in the order of $2,000 but the Board has reduced this to $500 being an amount the Board considers is reasonable for the Respondent to pay toward the costs and expenses of, and incidental to, the inquiry by the Board.

Publication

- [48] As a consequence of its decision the Respondent's name and the disciplinary outcomes will be recorded in the public register maintained as part of the Licensed Building Practitioners' scheme as is required by the Act<sup>23</sup>. The Board is also able, under section 318(5) of the Act, to order publication over and above the public register:

In addition to requiring the Registrar to notify in the register an action taken by the Board under this section, the Board may publicly notify the action in any other way it thinks fit.

- [49] As a general principle such further public notification may be required where the Board perceives a need for the public and/or the profession to know of the findings of a disciplinary hearing. This is in addition to the Respondent being named in this decision.
- [50] Within New Zealand there is a principle of open justice and open reporting which is enshrined in the Bill of Rights Act 1990<sup>24</sup>. The Criminal Procedure Act 2011 sets out grounds for suppression within the criminal jurisdiction<sup>25</sup>. Within the disciplinary hearing jurisdiction the courts have stated that the provisions in the Criminal Procedure Act do not apply but can be instructive<sup>26</sup>. The High Court provided guidance as to the types of factors to be taken into consideration in N v Professional Conduct Committee of Medical Council<sup>27</sup>.
- [51] The courts have also stated that an adverse finding in a disciplinary case usually requires that the name of the practitioner be published in the public interest<sup>28</sup>. It is, however, common practice in disciplinary proceedings to protect the names of other persons involved as naming them does not assist the public interest.
- [52] Based on the above the Board will not order further publication.

Section 318 Order

- [53] For the reasons set out above, the Board directs that:

Penalty:	Pursuant to section 318(1)(f) of the Building Act 2004, the Respondent is ordered to pay a fine of $2,000.
Costs:	Pursuant to section 318(4) of the Act, the Respondent is ordered to pay costs of $500 (GST included) towards the costs of, and incidental to, the inquiry of the Board.

Publication: The Registrar shall record the Board's action in the Register of Licensed Building Practitioners in accordance with section 301(1)(iii) of the Act.

In terms of section 318(5) of the Act, there will not be action taken to publicly notify the Board's action, except for the note in the Register and the Respondent being named in this decision.

- [54] The Respondent should note that the Board may, under section 319 of the Act, suspend or cancel a licensed building practitioner's licence if fines or costs imposed as a result of disciplinary action are not paid.

Submissions on Penalty, Costs and Publication

- [55] The Board invites the Respondent to make written submissions on the matters of disciplinary penalty, costs and publication up until close of business on 12 June 2018. The submissions should focus on mitigating matters as they relate to the penalty, costs and publication orders. If no submissions are received then this decision will become final. If submissions are received then the Board will meet and consider those submissions prior to coming to a final decision on penalty, costs and publication.

Right of Appeal

- [56] The right to appeal Board decisions is provided for in section 330(2) of the Act<sup>ii</sup>.
