Summary of the Board’s Decision

- [1] The Respondent has failed to provide a record of work on completion of restricted building work. He is fined $1,000 and ordered to pay costs of $1,000. The disciplinary outcome will be recorded on the Register of Licensed Building Practitioners for a period of three years.
- [2] The Board found that the Respondent has not carried out or supervised building work in a negligent or incompetent manner or in a manner that was contrary to a building consent on the basis that the conduct complained about was not serious enough to warrant a disciplinary outcome.

The Charges

- [3] The hearing resulted from a complaint about the conduct of the Respondent and a Board resolution under regulation 10 of the Complaints Regulations¹ to hold a hearing in relation to building work at [Omitted]. The alleged disciplinary offences the Board resolved to investigate were that the Respondent:
- (a) carried out or supervised building work or building inspection work in a negligent or incompetent manner contrary to section 317(1)(b) of the Act;

¹ The resolution was made following the Board’s consideration of a report prepared by the Registrar in accordance with the Complaints Regulations.

- (b) carried out or supervised building work or building inspection work that does not comply with a building consent contrary to section 317(1)(d) of the Act; and
 - (c) failed, without good reason, in respect of a building consent that relates to restricted building work that he or she is to carry out (other than as an owner-builder) or supervise, or has carried out (other than as an owner-builder) or supervised, (as the case may be), to provide the persons specified in section 88(2) with a record of work, on completion of the restricted building work, in accordance with section 88(1) of the Act contrary to section 317(1)(da)(ii) of the Act.
- [4] In further investigating the Respondent's conduct under section 317(1)(b) of the Act, the Board gave notice that it would be inquiring into:
- (a) the quality and compliance of the construction of a deck, including:
 - (i) balustrade spacing;
 - (ii) the use of non-stainless-steel fixings;
 - (iii) a failure to bolt bracing;
 - (iv) a failure to install timber blocking at both ends of the deck; and
 - (v) a failure to install fixings to the joists on a cantilever; and
 - (b) the non-compliance issues noted in building inspections dated 4 October 2018 (page 135 of the Board's files), 30 November 2018 (page 143 of the Board's files), and 8 April 2021 (pages 149 and 150 of the Board's files).
- [5] In further investigating the Respondent's conduct under section 317(1)(d) of the Act, the Board gave notice that it would be inquiring into:
- (a) the compliance of the construction of a deck;
 - (b) the non-compliance issues noted in building inspections dated 4 October 2018 (page 135 of the Board's files), 30 November 2018 (page 143 of the Board's files), and 8 April 2021 (pages 149 and 150 of the Board's files); and
 - (c) the processes used in respect of changes to the building consent noted in those inspections.

Function of Disciplinary Action

- [6] The common understanding of the purpose of professional discipline is to uphold the integrity of the profession. The focus is not punishment, but the protection of the public, the maintenance of public confidence and the enforcement of high standards of propriety and professional conduct. Those purposes were recently reiterated by the Supreme Court of the United Kingdom in *R v Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales*² and in New Zealand in *Dentice v Valuers Registration Board*³.

- [7] Disciplinary action under the Act is not designed to redress issues or disputes between a complainant and a respondent. In McLanahan and Tan v The New Zealand Registered Architects Board,⁴ Collins J. noted that:

“... the disciplinary process does not exist to appease those who are dissatisfied The disciplinary process ... exists to ensure professional standards are maintained in order to protect clients, the profession and the broader community.”

- [8] In a similar vein, the Board’s investigation and hearing process is not designed to address every issue that is raised in a complaint or by a complainant. The disciplinary scheme under the Act and Complaint’s Regulations focuses on serious conduct that warrants investigation and, if upheld, disciplinary action. Focusing on serious conduct is consistent with decisions made in the New Zealand courts in relation to the conduct of licensed persons⁵:

... the statutory test is not met by mere professional incompetence or by deficiencies in the practice of the profession. Something more is required. It includes a deliberate departure from accepted standards or such serious negligence as, although not deliberate, to portray indifference and an abuse.

- [9] Finally, the Board can only inquire into “the conduct of a licensed building practitioner” with respect to the grounds for discipline set out in section 317 of the Act. Those grounds do not include contractual breaches other than when the conduct reaches the high threshold for consideration under section 317(1)(i) of the Act, which deals with disrepute.

- [10] The above commentary on the limitations of the disciplinary process is important to note as, on the basis of it, the Board’s inquiries, and this decision, focus on and deal with the serious conduct complained about.

Inquiry Process

- [11] The investigation and hearing procedure under the Act and Complaints Regulations is inquisitorial, not adversarial. There is no requirement for a complainant to prove the allegations. Rather the Board sets the charges, and it decides what evidence is required at a hearing to assist it in its investigations. In this respect, the Board reviews the available evidence when considering the Registrar’s Report and determines the witnesses that it believes will assist at a hearing. The hearing itself is not a review of all of the available evidence. Rather it is an opportunity for the Board to seek clarification and explore certain aspects of the charges in greater depth.

⁴ [2016] HZHC 2276 at para 164

⁵ Pillai v Messiter (No 2) (1989) 16 NSWLR 197 (A) at 200

- [12] Whilst a complainant may not be required to give evidence at a hearing, they are welcome to attend and, if a complainant does attend, the Board provides them with an opportunity to participate in the proceedings.

Evidence

- [13] The Board must be satisfied on the balance of probabilities that the disciplinary offences alleged have been committed⁶. Under section 322 of the Act, the Board has relaxed rules of evidence that allow it to receive evidence that may not be admissible in a court of law.
- [14] The procedure the Board uses is inquisitorial, not adversarial. The Board examines the documentary evidence available to it prior to the hearing. The hearing is an opportunity for the Board, as the inquirer and decision-maker, to call and question witnesses to further investigate aspects of the evidence and to take further evidence from key witnesses. The hearing is not a review of all of the available evidence.
- [15] In addition to the documentary evidence before the Board, it heard evidence at the hearing from the Respondent and from Mr Tom Circuit, a Building Consent Officer at the Waikato District Council, and from the Complainants.
- [16] The Respondent was engaged by the Complainants to build a new residential dwelling under a building consent. Building work started on or about 1 June 2018 and progressed through until 22 December 2018, when the Respondent's involvement in the build came to an end. A commercial dispute ensued, which included civil litigation in the Disputes Tribunal. The Respondent maintained that he was, notwithstanding the dispute, willing to return and complete outstanding work.
- [17] When the Respondent's on-site involvement in the build came to an end the build had progressed to the point where the majority of the house build had been completed and a deck, which was also the main entrance to the dwelling, was under construction. Toward the end of the build, the focus was on making the house liveable so that the Complainants could move in early. The Respondent's evidence was that, as a result, aspects of the deck were not complete when his involvement in the build came to an end.
- [18] The Respondent stated that he had two workers on the build, one of whom was a qualified builder, the other a second-year apprentice. The Respondent was on site some of the time, but when the deck was being built, he was working on another build nearby and that he would check in on the workers each morning and would review completed work.
- [19] In terms of the issues being investigated, which were noted in Council inspections:
- (a) balustrade spacing – the Respondent accepted that the balustrade spacing was not completed as per the building consent but noted that there was some inconsistency in the plans as regards the set-out and that the error was an oversight;

- (b) the use of non-stainless-steel fixings – the Respondent stated that he had ordered stainless steel bolts but that the wrong size was supplied and that galvanised were installed whilst the correct size bolts were obtained and that the failure to use stainless steel joist hangers was a mistake and that they had been replaced with stainless steel prior to him leaving the job;
- (c) a failure to bolt bracing – the deck was not complete, the focus was on completing internal work so that the house could be lived in;
- (d) a failure to install timber blocking at both ends of the deck – the deck was not complete, the focus was on completing internal work so that the house could be lived in; and
- (e) a failure to install fixings to the joists on a cantilever – the deck was not complete, the focus was on completing internal work so that the house could be lived in.

[20] With regard to changes to the building consent, the Council inspections noted “amended subfloor bracing design required”. None of the witnesses’ present could assist the Board with evidence as to what the change was and whether the notation was requiring a minor variation, an amendment or as-built plans. The Respondent outlined his process for dealing with building consent changes, which included consulting with the designer and the Building Consent Authority.

[21] With regard to the Respondent’s record of work, he provided the Board with a record of work dated 13 May 2021. It was held by the Respondent whilst a dispute was being dealt with by legal representatives. It was not provided to the owner or the Territorial Authority. The Complainants noted that they had been requesting the record of work as they needed it for a Code Compliance Certificate application. The Complainants stated that the building work has now been completed by other contractors. The Respondent stated he may not have provided it as a result of the anger he felt and the animosity he had toward the Complainants because of the dispute.

Board’s Conclusion and Reasoning

[22] The Board has decided that the Respondent has not:

- (a) carried out or supervised building work or building inspection work in a negligent or incompetent manner (s 317(1)(b) of the Act); and
- (b) carried out or supervised building work or building inspection work that does not comply with a building consent (s 317(1)(d) of the Act).

[23] The Board has decided that the Respondent has failed, without good reason, in respect of a building consent that relates to restricted building work that he or she is to carry out (other than as an owner-builder) or supervise, or has carried out (other than as an owner-builder) or supervised, (as the case may be), to provide the persons specified in section 88(2) with a record of work, on completion of the restricted building work, in accordance with section 88(1) (s 317(1)(da)(ii) of the Act) and should be disciplined.

[24] The reasons for the Board's decisions follow.

Negligence and/or Incompetence

[25] Negligence and incompetence are not the same. In *Beattie v Far North Council*⁷ Judge McElrea noted:

[43] Section 317 of the Act uses the phrase "in a negligent or incompetent manner", so it is clear that those adjectives cannot be treated as synonymous.

[26] Negligence is the departure by a licensed building practitioner whilst carrying out or supervising building work from an accepted standard of conduct. It is judged against those of the same class of licence as the person whose conduct is being inquired into. This is described as the *Bolam*⁸ test of negligence which has been adopted by the New Zealand Courts⁹.

[27] Incompetence is a lack of ability, skill, or knowledge to carry out or supervise building work to an acceptable standard. Beattie put it as "a demonstrated lack of the reasonably expected ability or skill level". In Ali v Kumar and Others,¹⁰ it was stated as "an inability to do the job".

[28] The New Zealand Courts have stated that an assessment of negligence and/or incompetence in a disciplinary context is a two-stage test¹¹. The first is for the Board to consider whether the practitioner has departed from the acceptable standard of conduct of a professional. The second is to consider whether the departure is significant enough to warrant a disciplinary sanction or, in other words, whether the conduct was serious enough.

[29] In terms of seriousness in Collie v Nursing Council of New Zealand,¹² the Court's noted, as regards the threshold for disciplinary matters, that:

[21] Negligence or malpractice may or may not be sufficient to constitute professional misconduct and the guide must be standards applicable by competent, ethical and responsible practitioners and there must be behaviour which falls seriously short of that which is to be considered acceptable and not mere inadvertent error, oversight or for that matter carelessness.

[30] In *Pillai v Messiter (No 2)*¹³ the Court of Appeal stated:

... the statutory test is not met by mere professional incompetence or by deficiencies in the practice of the profession. Something more is required. It includes a deliberate departure from accepted standards or such serious negligence as, although not deliberate, to portray indifference and an abuse.

[31] The matters before the Board were, on the basis of the evidence heard at the hearing, not sufficiently serious enough to warrant the Board taking disciplinary action against the Respondent. The Board accepted that the issues were either oversights or incomplete work. The Respondent should, however, take more care in the future, especially with regard to what is specified on the building consent.

[32] The Board also decided that there was insufficient evidence as regards a possible change to the building consent and that, as such, it was not able to make a finding on the matter.

Contrary to a Building Consent

[33] Under section 40 of the Act, all building work must be carried out in accordance with the building consent issued. Once a building consent has been granted, any changes to it must be dealt with in the appropriate manner.

[34] There was an indication in the Council inspection records that a change to the building consent may have taken place without any process being used for that change. There was not, however, sufficient evidence before the Board for it to determine whether an unauthorised change had occurred.

[35] With regard to the compliance of the deck, whilst a charge of building contrary to a building consent can be a form of strict liability offence¹⁴, the Board, in this instance, has taken the nature of the matters before it into account and has decided that the contraventions were not serious enough.

[36] The Respondent is, however, cautioned to take care when dealing with building consent changes. It is recommended that he ensure a written record is kept of his interactions with design and engineering professionals as regards changes and that Building Consent Authority paperwork and approvals are processed prior to the changes being undertaken on site.

Record of Work

[37] There is a statutory requirement under section 88(1) of the Building Act 2004 for a licensed building practitioner to provide a record of work to the owner and the territorial authority on completion of restricted building work¹⁵.

¹³ (1989) 16 NSWLR 197 (CA) at 200

¹⁴ Blewman v Wilkinson [1979] 2 NZLR 208

¹⁵ Restricted Building Work is defined by the Building (Definition of Restricted Building Work) Order 2011

- [38] Failing to provide a record of work is a ground for discipline under section 317(1)(da)(ii) of the Act. In order to find that ground for discipline proven, the Board need only consider whether the Respondent had “good reason” for not providing a record of work on “completion” of the restricted building work.
- [39] The Board discussed issues with regard to records of work in its decision C2-01170¹⁶ and gave guidelines to the profession as to who must provide a record of work, what a record of work is for, when it is to be provided, the level of detail that must be provided, who a record of work must be provided to and what might constitute a good reason for not providing a record of work.
- [40] The starting point with a record of work is that it is a mandatory statutory requirement whenever restricted building work under a building consent is carried out or supervised by a licensed building practitioner (other than as an owner-builder). Each and every licensed building practitioner who carries out restricted building work must provide a record of work.
- [41] The statutory provisions do not stipulate a timeframe for the licenced person to provide a record of work. The provisions in section 88(1) simply states “on completion of the restricted building work ...”. As was noted by Justice Muir in *Ministry of Business Innovation and Employment v Bell*¹⁷ “... the only relevant precondition to the obligations of a licenced building practitioner under s 88 is that he/she has completed their work”.
- [42] As to when completion will have occurred is a question of fact in each case. In most situations’ issues with the provision of a record of work do not arise. The work progresses, and records of work are provided in a timely fashion. That did not occur in the present matter. The build progressed through to December 2018. It then came to an end as a result of a commercial dispute. The building work has been completed by other contractors. The Respondent wrote a record of work on 13 May 2021. The fact that he wrote it indicates that, at that point in time, he felt his restricted building work was complete. He did not provide it to the owner or the Territorial Authority. On this basis, the Board finds that the record of work was not provided on completion as required, and the disciplinary offence has been committed.
- [43] Section 317(1)(da)(ii) of the Act provides for a defence of the licenced building practitioner having a “good reason” for failing to provide a record of work. If they can, on the balance of probabilities, prove to the Board that one exists, then it is open to the Board to find that a disciplinary offence has not been committed. Each case will be decided by the Board on its own merits, but the threshold for a good reason is high.
- [44] In this instance, there was an ongoing payment dispute. The Board has repeatedly stated that a Record of Work is a statutory requirement, not a negotiable term of a contract. The requirement for it is not affected by the terms of a contract, nor by contractual disputes. Licensed building practitioners should now be aware of their obligations to provide them, and their provision should be a matter of routine.

¹⁶ Licensed Building Practitioners Board Case Decision C2-01170 15 December 2015

¹⁷ [2018] NZHC 1662 at para 50

- [45] The Respondent should also note that the requirement is on the licensed building practitioner to provide a record of work, not on the owner or territorial authority to demand one. He is required to act of his own accord and not wait for others to remind him of his obligations.

Penalty, Costs and Publication

- [46] Having found that one or more of the grounds in section 317 applies, the Board must, under section 318 of the Actⁱ, consider the appropriate disciplinary penalty, whether the Respondent should be ordered to pay any costs and whether the decision should be published.
- [47] The Respondent made submissions at the hearing as regards penalty, costs and publication. He noted that he had learnt from the matter and had changed his business practices and outlined the impact the dispute had had on him and his business.

Penalty

- [48] The purpose of professional discipline is to uphold the integrity of the profession; the focus is not punishment but the enforcement of a high standard of propriety and professional conduct. The Board does note, however, that the High Court in *Patel v Complaints Assessment Committee*¹⁸ commented on the role of “punishment” in giving penalty orders stating that punitive orders are, at times, necessary to provide a deterrent and to uphold professional standards. The Court noted:

[28] I therefore propose to proceed on the basis that, although the protection of the public is a very important consideration, nevertheless the issues of punishment and deterrence must also be taken into account in selecting the appropriate penalty to be imposed.

- [49] The Board also notes that in Lochhead v Ministry of Business Innovation and Employment,¹⁹ the Court noted that whilst the statutory principles of sentencing set out in the Sentencing Act 2002 do not apply to the Building Act, they do have the advantage of simplicity and transparency. The Court recommended adopting a starting point for a penalty based on the seriousness of the disciplinary offending prior to considering any aggravating and/or mitigating factors.
- [50] The Respondent has previously appeared before the Board²⁰. The finding in that matter did not relate to records of work, and the conduct occurred after that, which is now complained about. As such, the previous matter is not relative to penalty in this matter.

¹⁸ HC Auckland CIV-2007-404-1818, 13 August 2007 at p 27

²⁰ Wilson [2020] BPB 25186 – Draft Decision

- [51] Record of work matters are at the lower end of the disciplinary scale. The Board's normal starting point for a failure to provide a record of work is a fine of $1,500, an amount which it considers will deter others from such behaviour. There are some mitigating factors present, including a genuine belief by the Respondent that the parties might still reach agreement on the completion of the works. As such, the Board has decided to reduce the fine to $1,000.
- [52] The Board does recommend that the Respondent obtain and study the Understanding the Regulatory Environment booklet from the Board's website along with the Supervision Guidelines.

Costs

- [53] Under section 318(4) the Board may require the Respondent "to pay the costs and expenses of, and incidental to, the inquiry by the Board."
- [54] The Respondent should note that the High Court has held that 50% of total reasonable costs should be taken as a starting point in disciplinary proceedings and that the percentage can then be adjusted up or down having regard to the particular circumstances of each case²¹.
- [55] In Collie v Nursing Council of New Zealand,²² where the order for costs in the tribunal was 50% of actual costs and expenses, the High Court noted that:
- [56] In Kenneth Michael Daniels v Complaints Committee 2 of the Wellington District Law Society,²³ the High Court noted:

But for an order for costs made against a practitioner, the profession is left to carry the financial burden of the disciplinary proceedings, and as a matter of policy that is not appropriate.

[46] All cases referred to in Cooray were medical cases and the Judge was careful to note that the 50 per cent was the general approach that the Medical Council took. We do not accept that if there was any such approach, it is necessarily to be taken in proceedings involving other disciplinary bodies. Much will depend upon the time involved, actual expenses incurred, attitude of the practitioner bearing in mind that whilst the cost of a disciplinary action by a professional body must be something of a burden imposed upon its members, those members should not be expected to bear too large a measure where a practitioner is shown to be guilty of serious misconduct.

²¹ Cooray v The Preliminary Proceedings Committee HC, Wellington, AP23/94, 14 September 1995, Macdonald v Professional Conduct Committee, HC, Auckland, CIV 2009-404-1516, 10 July 2009, Owen v Wynyard HC, Auckland, CIV-2009-404-005245, 25 February 2010.

²² [2001] NZAR 74

²³ CIV-2011-485-000227 8 August 2011

[47] Costs orders made in proceedings involving law practitioners are not to be determined by any mathematical approach. In some cases 50 per cent will be too high, in others insufficient.

- [57] The Board has adopted an approach to costs that uses a scale based on 50% of the average costs of different categories of hearings, simple, moderate and complex. The current matter was moderate. Adjustments based on the High Court decisions above are then made.
- [58] The Board's scale costs for a half-day hearing is $3,500. The only charge upheld, however, was the failure to provide a record of work. Given this, the Board has decided to reduce the costs to $1,000.

Publication

- [59] As a consequence of its decision, the Respondent's name and the disciplinary outcomes will be recorded in the public Register maintained as part of the Licensed Building Practitioners' scheme as is required by the Act²⁴. The Board is also able, under section 318(5) of the Act, to order publication over and above the public Register:

In addition to requiring the Registrar to notify in the register an action taken by the Board under this section, the Board may publicly notify the action in any other way it thinks fit.

- [60] As a general principle, such further public notification may be required where the Board perceives a need for the public and/or the profession to know of the findings of a disciplinary hearing. This is in addition to the Respondent being named in this decision.
- [61] Within New Zealand, there is a principle of open justice and open reporting, which is enshrined in the Bill of Rights Act 1990²⁵. The Criminal Procedure Act 2011 sets out grounds for suppression within the criminal jurisdiction²⁶. Within the disciplinary hearing jurisdiction, the courts have stated that the provisions in the Criminal Procedure Act do not apply but can be instructive²⁷. The High Court provided guidance as to the types of factors to be taken into consideration in *N v Professional Conduct Committee of Medical Council*²⁸.
- [62] The courts have also stated that an adverse finding in a disciplinary case usually requires that the name of the practitioner be published in the public interest²⁹. It is, however, common practice in disciplinary proceedings to protect the names of other persons involved as naming them does not assist the public interest.

Section 318 Order

[64] For the reasons set out above, the Board directs that:

Penalty: Pursuant to section 318(1)(f) of the Building Act 2004, the Respondent is ordered to pay a fine of $1,000.

Costs: Pursuant to section 318(4) of the Act, the Respondent is ordered to pay costs of $1,000 (GST included) towards the costs of, and incidental to, the inquiry of the Board.

Publication: The Registrar shall record the Board's action in the Register of Licensed Building Practitioners in accordance with section 301(l)(iii) of the Act.

In terms of section 318(5) of the Act, there will not be action taken to publicly notify the Board's action, except for the note in the Register and the Respondent being named in this decision.

[65] The Respondent should note that the Board may, under section 319 of the Act, suspend or cancel a licensed building practitioner's licence if fines or costs imposed as a result of disciplinary action are not paid.

Right of Appeal

[66] The right to appeal Board decisions is provided for in section 330(2) of the Actⁱⁱ.
